

XTEK Goes Ballistic

7th July 2020

XTEK's Philippe Odouard says the defence manufacturer's explosive guidance ably supported by improved manufacturing efficiency. It's time to lock and load

The screenshot shows a video player interface. On the left is a video frame of Philippe Odouard. On the right are two stock charts for XTEK (XTE). The top chart is an intraday chart showing a price of $0.00 with a green arrow indicating a 23.81% increase (12.80% gain). The bottom chart is a 1-year chart showing a price of $0.85 with a green arrow indicating a 0.40 increase (88.89% gain). At the bottom of the player, there is a purple banner with the text "Xtek expects revenue in excess of $42M in FY20" and "the pulse" logo. Below the banner, there are market indices: TOP 200 ASX at 86.59 (-1.21%) and CXA 200 at 0.16%.

<https://www.ausbiz.com.au/media/xtek-goes-ballistic?videoid=2519>